CNAC Copyright Summer Event
9th September 2019

Helena Djurkovic, CEO
The basics of the ERA Licence

- University licences run annually from 1 August to 31 July
- Tariff agreed with the Higher Education Copyright Negotiating and Advisory Committee (CNAC) and published on ERA’s website
- Tariff for 2019-20 set at £2.40 per full-time student. This has remained fixed since 2017/18
- Part-time students charged at 35% of full tariff
- Licence fees calculated using student data supplied by HESA
What does the ERA Licence allow?

• Showing copies of clips or whole programmes for educational purposes

• Accessing recordings via an approved third party such as BoB, ClickView or Planet eStream

• Using clips from broadcasters’ websites and on-demand services

• Sharing programmes on VLEs

• Embedding clips in presentations

• Accessing ERA licensed material on or off-site in the UK
Enhancements to the ERA Licence

• ERA is working to increase the volume of broadcast content produced by its Members that can be readily accessed by its licensees by:

  - Supporting plans by cultural heritage institutions such as the BFI and British Library to digitise and make available their archives of broadcast content for educational use as approved third parties
  - Working with the BBC to facilitate wider access to its vast programme archives
  - Extending the ERA Repertoire to recordings of programmes and clips that pre-date the ERA scheme

• ERA is also helping facilitate access, recording and storage of broadcast materials for those institutions that do not subscribe to approved third party services by:

  - Offering curated links to thousands of broadcast resources through the ERA website (www.era.org.uk)
  - Exploring ways of ensuring programmes of significant educational value are accessible on a permanent basis
ERA currently operates within a number of constraints

- ERA was set up by rightsholders in response to the educational exception created under s35 of the Copyright, Designs & Patents Act (1988) allowing for copying of television and radio broadcasts by educational establishments for educational use but requiring a licence where a licensing scheme exists.

- ERA’s Members mandate their rights for use under the terms of s35.

- ERA thus operates within very clear parameters as to what constitutes ERA Recordings and how they can be used:
  - Broadcast programming only
  - Recordings made only in the UK
  - UK access only

- We recognise that some of these limitations can be frustrating for our licensees.
ERA is adapting to overcome these constraints

• ERA Members recognise that ERA is operating in a rapidly changing audio-visual market place and a globalising higher education sector. They understand that to better meet the needs of licensees ERA should seek to extend licensing beyond s35 of the CDPA

• The Board is currently reviewing ERA’s governance documents and the rights Members mandate to ERA with a view to enabling it to license the recording of a wider range of audio-visual materials for a broader range of educational purposes
Allowing offshore access to the ERA Repertoire

• ERA fully recognises that the value of the ERA Licence to the HE sector would be enhanced by allowing access to ERA Recordings by:
  ▪ UK-based students while travelling overseas
  ▪ Off-shore students studying for a qualification from a UK HEI

• The ERA Board has agreed in principle to allow access on condition that:
  ▪ Recordings cannot be made overseas but only in the UK
  ▪ Access to recordings is through secure UK-based university networks
  ▪ A pilot study in 2019-20 organised by Learning on Screen with the overseas campus of a British university does not raise any unforeseen challenges

• Agreement has been reached with CNAC that:
  ▪ The cost of the licence shall remain at £2.40 per FTE for a further three years
  ▪ If during this period ERA is able to extend the licence terms to include students registered for qualifications of UK HEIs but based outside the UK, the tariff will increase to £2.45 per FTE

• It is ERA’s aim to facilitate overseas use from August 2020
Areas where ERA is exploring extending access to audio-visual content beyond s35 include:

• BBC World Service programmes broadcast outside the UK

• Podcasts and streamed content

• Licensing cultural heritage institutions to make out-of-commerce work available to the public to enable them to make their archives more widely available for private study and research
